

EXPANSION - ALTERNATIVE TM SCALING

The base version of PMTU includes over 200 TM Item cards that can grant your Pokémon new Moves that they can use in Battle. Under the standard rules, all of the TM cards are shuffled together into one deck. Due to the natural difference in each Move's power and utility, some are much weaker than others and lose usefulness later in the game, leading to potential dead draws. This expansion seeks to remedy that and make the power level of the TMs you'll be using throughout the game scale throughout the game.

Note: These rules can be used with isutton007's original TM cards, but pre- and post-game sorting of the cards may be more time-consuming, since you'll need to reference a few lists to sort the cards out into their respective decks.

TM TIERS

This expansion includes revamped versions of every TM in the base game. The Moves themselves remain unchanged, of course, but the card layout includes an additional indicator in the bottom-left corner.

Here, you will see a colored star (green, red, or blue), as well as a word that corresponds to a TM's relative power level (Novice, Advanced, or Expert). The Green Novice-Tier TMs provide Moves much like you'll find on lower-Level Pokémon tokens, Blue Expert-Tier TMs provide some of the game's strongest Moves, and Red Advanced-Tier TMs fall somewhere in the middle.

At the start of a game, separate the available TM Item cards into three decks, each corresponding to a single Tier of TM. Place each deck near the game board.

UNLOCKING A TM TIER

As you play through a game of PMTU, each Tier of TM will naturally become available to you.

- At the start of the game, only the Green Novice-Tier TMs are available for any game effect that requires you to interact with the TM deck.
- Any player that has acquired a Gym Badge of at least Tier 3 may begin utilizing the Red Advanced-Tier TM deck.
- Any player that has acquired a Gym Badge of at least Tier 5 may begin utilizing the Blue Expert-Tier TM deck.

Once a new Tier of TM deck has been unlocked, you may still draw cards from a lower-Tier deck if you choose. For instances where multiple cards are drawn, revealed, or taken at once (such as the TM Case Item card), all cards must be drawn from the same deck.

Game effects that would attach a TM card to any Pokémon not under a player's control will always utilize the highest-Tier deck which is available to the player whose turn it is.
